As soon as Junie steps onto the bus, she's greeted by a chorus of loud noises and strange smells. There are kids screaming, babies crying, and the air is thick with the scent of sweaty socks and old cheese.

Junie tries to find a seat, but they're all taken. She ends up sitting next to a boy with a runny nose and a girl who keeps picking her scabs. Junie is about to lose her mind when she sees her friend, Lucille, sitting in the back of the bus.

Junie rushes over to Lucille and sits down next to her. Lucille is just as disgusted by the bus as Junie is, but she's also a lot more brave. She tells Junie to just ignore the other kids and focus on the ride home.

Junie tries to follow Lucille's advice, but it's hard. The bus driver keeps making sudden stops and starts, and the kids around her are getting louder and more annoying by the minute.

Just when Junie thinks she can't take it anymore, the bus finally arrives at her school. Junie jumps off the bus and takes a deep breath of fresh air. She's glad to be out of that smelly, noisy place.

A Valuable Lesson

Even though Junie didn't enjoy her ride on the school bus, she did learn a valuable lesson. She learned that sometimes you have to face your fears and that things aren't always as bad as they seem.
